

I Am a Woman

*No I am not in love with life,
Neither am I a quiet homely wife,
And yes I do have quite a temper,
And no it isn't my habit to pamper,*

*I hate it when people judge,
Hate it even more when you do,
I am not a delicacy to indulge,
I am a woman, a human being like you*

*And my voice may be pleasant if you keep me without sorrow,
But remember when I am mad I'll cuss like no tomorrow*

No I won't put up a little dress to please you Or shower false complements to appease you

*No I won't smile or laugh for your sake
If my laughs are empty and my smiles are fake*

*I'm not a wallflower I'm a sunflower dear
And I will love you like no one can, I swear*

*I will never praise you for doing wrong
Yet for every good deed of yours I will sing a song*

I am a woman.

*I will catch you when you fall apart
Once I trust you I will love you with all my heart*

*I will kiss away every single bruise and tear
I will be the light shining in your darkest fear*

II will say I love you and will mean it No I don't care how you look, for your heart, I have seen it

*At night I will lay watching you like a shadow watches a face
And I will sit there contemplating in silence my feelings that race*

*I will look upon your every scar like a mark of war
Because you are my hero now, you were my hero before*

*I will show you heaven on earth rightly if you honour me
I will give you my everything when I know you deserve me*

*I'll be your light if you are my fire
Love me right darling you'll see I'm what you desire Give me a little respect and love, a thousand fold I'll give you from that moment on I won't love you I'll live you*

I am a woman.

Joyous Celly
B.A. (Hons) I Year
School of Languages,
Centre of German Studies, JNU